No Politics In Prosecuting Guilty, Says Coolidge

NEW YORK, February 12.—(By the Associated Press)—The country today has the definite promise of President Coolidge that there will be immediate adequate and unshrinking prosecution, criminal and civil, in the oil and leasing disclosures.

Speaking last night at the National Republican Club, Lincoln Anniversary Dinner, during his first visit to New York since he entered the White House, Mr. Coolidge declared he was intent on the enforcement of our laws without fear or favor, no matter who is hurt or what the consequences.

"In this effort there will be no politics, no partisanship," he asserted, referring to the contemplated oil lease prosecution. "It will be speedy, it will be just. I am a Republican, but I can not on that account shield any one because he is a Republican. I am a Republican, but I can not on that account prosecute any one because he is a Democrat."

The president's references to the senate investigating committee's disclosures and his attitude toward them aroused the greatest applause of any of the declarations he made in his address, which was heard by 2,000 men and women guests of the Republican Club.

He also referred to the agricultural situation in the northwest and asked the aid of the east in alleviating it.

POLITICAL OPPONENTS HAVE OUT-MANEUVURED COOLIDGE; PUT HIM ON THE DEFENSIVE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1924.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Lincoln's birthday found the party founded by the Great Emancipator split in twain. President Coolidge can not command a majority of the United States Senate on an issue as close to his administration as the retention or dismissal of a member of his cabinet.

The coalition of insurgent Republicans and Democrats was sufficient to pass the resolution requesting the resignation of Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy, and it will be sufficient to pass other measures embarrassing to Mr. Coolidge's leadership.

Although the President has steadfastly maintained that he had nothing to do with the Teapot Dome controversy and could not be held responsible for what happened even though he was an unofficial member of the Harding Cabinet and heard, as

U. S. Severs Diplomatic Relations With Honduras

WASHINGTON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Diplomatic relations between the United States and the government of Honduras have been severed by the state department. The step was taken because of the failure of three political factions in Honduras to reach an agreement under which constitutional government can be restored by peaceful means.

Carter Angered; Abandons Work On Tut's Tomb

LUXOR, EGYPT, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Owing to what he characterized as the "discourtesy" of the Egyptian public works department, Howard Carter, head of the excavation work, closed Tutankhamen's tomb today and abandoned operations. It is understood the crisis was precipitated by the refusal of the Egyptian government to permit the wives of the excavators to visit the tomb this morning.

LUXOR, EGYPT, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The correspondent of The Associated Press was the first newspaper man admitted today to view the gorgeous mummy case of Tutankhamen, which was discovered yesterday by the raising of the massive lid of the sarcophagus.

At the first view of this wonderful, bizarre, golden coffin, with the face, shoulders, breast and arms of the Pharaoh standing out in bold relief on the metal, one realized that this discovery was indeed an event in the annals of Egyptology.

Nothing has ever been found in Egypt before resembling this colossal of gold with its strangely natural, oddly captivating face and supreme dignity of line. The only parallel one can call to mind is the great stone effigy carved on the lid of the sarcophagus of Merneptah, the reputed Pharaoh of the exodus. It now seems clear that the effigy of Merneptah was modeled after that of Tutankhamen.

DAUGHERTY DENIES JUSTICE DEPARTMENT MADE ANY PROMISES OF IMMUNITY

WASHINGTON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Attorney General Daugherty denied in a communication sent today to the senate that the department of justice had made any settlement in war contract cases by which immunity from criminal prosecution was promised provided the civil liability was met.

Many cases had been settled without criminal prosecution, the attorney general said, but these involved in the main over payments by the government through mistake of law or facts and other contentions which would not warrant criminal prosecution.

"In the settlement of civil liability, in the matters and cases referred," Attorney General Daugherty wrote, "there has never been in any instance or on any agreement whatever, direct or indirect, immediate or remote, expressed or inferential, by the department of justice not to prosecute for any criminal liability where there was such liability."

McAdoo Puts Candidates In Hands Of Party Leaders

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The question of William G. McAdoo's availability for the Democratic presidential nomination is to be put up to a conference of state leaders fostering his candidacy to be held at Chicago, at his own suggestion.

In a letter to David L. Rockwell, of Ohio, campaign manager in charge of his national headquarters in Chicago, Mr. McAdoo last night asked him to call the conference to determine whether his service as counsel in the handling of the Mexican interests of E. L. Doheny "is prejudicial in the cause of progressive democracy."

He also recommended that "progressives outside the Democratic party, representatives of labor, representatives of the farmers, and any others who may think advisable" be invited to participate "in order that we may get as far as possible a true index of public opinion."

Mr. McAdoo declared that if the conference should decide that "an honorable professional service rendered by me to a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the senate committee," had made him unavailable for the nomination, he would "gladly withdraw and fight as a private in the ranks."

On the other hand, the conference should decide that he "will do so with all the power that is in me."

"My political life," he said, "is of no consequence as compared with the cause of progressive democracy."

Ohio Boats Threatened

CINCINNATI, O., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—For a time today several boats moored in the river here in the neighborhood of Sycamore street, were endangered when fire started in a freight office. Firemen, by fast work, managed to confine the flames to the office. The fire was caused by a defective fuse. The loss is estimated at several hundred dollars.

President Back In Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—President Coolidge, returning from New York, where he addressed the Lincoln Birthday dinner of the National Republican Club, reached Washington at 7 a. m. today, having been absent from the capital less than twenty hours on the first trip of more than a few miles he has made since becoming president.

James R. Garfield Of Ohio May Be Chosen In Place Of Strawn

Garfield May Be Chosen
WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—President Coolidge apparently is preparing to withdraw from the senate the nomination of Silas H. Strawn of Illinois, as special government counsel in the oil lease cases. It is possible that the name of Alton Pomerene, Mr. Strawn's colleague, also will be withdrawn. James R. Garfield of Ohio, was secretary of the interior under Roosevelt, may be chosen as counsel in place of Mr. Strawn.

Says Every One Will Be Removed
WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A prediction that public opinion will force President Coolidge to remove every official connected with the oil reserve leases was made today by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, the Democratic leader, in reply to the president's refusal to accept the senate's advice

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Karl Shuyler, a Denver attorney, telegraphed Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, today that he has in his possession, correspondence which he thought the senator should have. Senator Walsh said he would be summoned.

At the same time the Montana senator received a telegram from D. F. Stackelback of the Denver Post, saying he had good reason to believe that the correspondence in Shuyler's possession was "sensational."

Stackelback's telegram follows: "Have good reason to believe that Karl C. Shuyler, Denver attorney, has sensational correspondence in his possession regarding Teapot matter. I believe he should be subpoenaed and asked to bring any correspondence had by him with newspaper publishers."

Shuyler's telegram said: "I acted as personal counsel to John Leo Stack in connection with his contract with the Pioneer Oil Company and his claims arising therefrom. Charges have been made in the local newspapers,

RARE EXHIBIT

CINCINNATI, O.—An old letter mailed prior to the invention of envelopes and before the United States used postage stamps, was conspicuous among a prize collection of old letters and stamps on exhibition at the Cincinnati postoffice.

New York Financier Makes Sensational Assertions In Address Before Rotary Club

NEW YORK, February 13.—(By the United Press)—A congressional investigation to clear President Harding's good name of Washington rumors regarding the sale of his newspaper, The Marion Star, was urged today by Frank A. Vanderlip in an interview with newspaper men at his office here.

Vanderlip thus explained his speech on the same subject delivered last night before the Ossining Rotary Club during a banquet at the Brier Cliff Lodge. He disclaimed any personal knowledge of the facts in "the kettle of the Washington gossip," and added that this gossip outrages the name of the dead president and should be cleared up.

Vanderlip emphasized that all he knew about the sale of The Marion Star, is: "That it was sold for over $550,000 when it is not worth over half of that," and therefore that "President Harding's name is floating around in the kettle of scandal, simmering at Washington."

"There seems to be a policy of silence on the part of the press in regard to using President Harding's name in connection with the Washington scandals."

"The newspapers do not want to look under the shroud out of respect for the dead."

"I want to look under the shroud and protect the name of the dead president," said Vanderlip.

PURCHASERS OF PAPER MAKE DENIAL

MARION, O., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Roy D. Moore, who with Louis H. Brush, of Salem, Ohio, purchased The Marion, Ohio, Star from President Harding, today emphatically denied that their purchase of the Star was in any way connected with the Teapot Dome scandal.

"I hesitate" said a statement issued by Mr. Moore, "to dignify Mr. Vanderlip's Ossining speech, which apparently tries to implicate the sale of The Marion Star in the Teapot Dome scandal, with denial. If Vanderlip were a newspaper man he would edit his copy and watch his facts more closely."

"If the Teapot Dome bunch could have manipulated the purchase of The Star for $550,000, which was the price paid for it, they would have found it a very good bargain, but they did not buy it."

"The control of The Star was bought by Mr. Louis H. Brush and myself as individuals, the Harding estate still holding a large amount of stock in the company. We regard it as worth all we paid for it, which figure, incidentally, has never been available for Mr. Vanderlip's investigation."

"Had Mr. Vanderlip taken the trouble to consult the records in the probate court of Marion county and ascertain the facts, he would not have made himself so utterly ridiculous. If all the Teapot Dome scandal is based on information so ridiculously and unnecessarily false as Mr. Vanderlip's Ossining speech, it should be very encouraging to the American republic."

BRUSH SENDS MESSAGE TO WILLIS

CLEVELAND, O., February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Louis H. Brush, part owner of The Marion (Ohio) Star, late today sent the following telegram to United States Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, at Washington: "I hope you will insist that the senate oil investigating committee subpoena Frank A. Vanderlip to Washington to corroborate his statement at a dinner in Ossining, N. Y., last night, relative to the Harding sale of The Marion Star. His statements are not only false but ridiculous."

VANDERLIP SUBPOENAED TO TESTIFY

WASHINGTON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—A subpoena for Frank A. Vanderlip to appear before the senate oil committee was issued today by Chairman Lenroot.

He will be asked about references he made in a speech at Ossining, N. Y., last night to the oil inquiry and to the source of funds used last year to purchase "a certain Marion newspaper."

Test Life Giving Powers of Oxygen

LONDON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—In order to test the life saving powers of oxygen in certain diseases, experiments are being carried out at one of the London hospitals with a glass bed room hermetically sealed, in which persons are kept for five days in an atmosphere which contains 40 to 50 per cent oxygen or double the amount present in ordinary air.

GEORGETOWN, O., Feb. 13.—(Special to the Times)—Judge J. W. Turbell, of the Court of Common Pleas, today handed down a sweeping opinion upholding the legality of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative contract in Ohio and the constitutionality of the co-operative plan of marketing in the suit of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association against Brown county growers for damages for alleged violation of their marketing contracts.

The decision followed a legal battle in which the arguments lasted for an entire day.

From Memphis, Tenn., came a young lawyer, Abe D. Waldauer, who met the leading counsel of Ohio, ex-Governor Judson Harmon, at Portsmouth and Jack A. Z. Blair, of Portsmouth and won. It was a tight battle between enthusiastic youth on the one side and skilled and veteran counsel on the other.

Offered Arguments

Governor Harmon opened the arguments, contending that the law was unconstitutional, and the contract invalid, stating that the association was a monopoly, and in restraint of trade.

It had been stated previously that the plan, nationally known co-operative marketing law and expert, would personally appear and argue the cases. A feeling of disappointment swept over the loyal poolers when a young Tennessean rose to argue the case for the association. But as he presented his case, disappointment soon gave place to confidence on the part of the association's friends in attendance at the hearing.

"The charge that the law is class legislation cannot be raised by the defendant," asserted the Tennessean, "as he is within the alleged favored class. The Supreme Court of the United States has so held in three cases. But we advise that point, if your honor please, because we want to go over to our opponents' side of the table and fight out this issue."

Then Waldauer presented a lengthy citation of every upholding the constitutionality of the act. It was at this point that ex-Governor Harmon interrupted Waldauer.

Seek Ohio Authority

"That may be good law in North Carolina," said the ex-governor. "But we want some respectable authority—some Ohio authority."

Waldauer answered the ex-governor: "I was reading from a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States which I assume is respectable authority, even in Ohio, and I propose to read Ohio decisions on this point later in my argument. The Supreme Court of Ohio has spoken in similar cases involving this classification, and has spoken in our favor."

At this point a wave of applause swept over the court room. Judge Turbell cautioned the audience that no such demonstrations could be tolerated and that the room would be cleared if there was another.

For three hours the Tennessean spoke, citing twelve courts of last resort upholding co-operative contracts and calling to his aid the economic experience of growers of agricultural products, who are successfully conducted, and the combination of law, reason and eloquence.

"Have not thirty states passed the act in question? Have not these contracts been upheld in more than fifteen states in the union? If the whole scheme were illegal beyond a reasonable doubt, why the court can point out one decision so holding."

Laws Are Stern

The Tennessean was caustic in his reply to the charge that the association was a trust. "There are no Anti-Trust laws in Ohio. If the contract is illegal beyond a reasonable doubt, certainly one prosecuting attorney in the State of Ohio would have returned an indictment against one of the ten thousand citizens of this state who have signed these contracts. Has the law-enforcing machinery of Ohio gone on vacation? We think not. We think these trust busters of the opposition must show something more than the mere statement that a farmers' co-operative association is a trust."

When Waldauer finished his argument

the grovers in the hall crowded around him, following the adjournment of the court, to congratulate him.

Arguments were also made by Alfred

Jettman, of Cincinnati, for the Association, ex-Governor Harmon and Judge Blair for the defendants. The decision today definitely legalizes co-operative associations in Ohio.

Harry E. Parker, of this city, and Ell H. Spidel, of Batavia, Ohio, also represented the Association in the cases, but took no part in the argument.

(Associated Press)

GEORGETOWN, O., Feb. 13.—In an opinion handed down today, Judge James W. Turbell, of the common pleas court, sustained the contract made entered into by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, a corporation or organization, organized under Kentucky laws, with its grower members for the delivery by them to the association of the tobacco grown by them for the next five years.

Several members, who signed the contract refused to deliver their tobacco and the association brought suit to recover the damages provided for in the contract. The constitutionality of the law and the validity of the contract was attacked by the defendants.

SENATE ORDERS INQUIRY INTO CHARGES

OF FRAUDULENT LAND OPERATIONS IN TEXAS

WASHINGTON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Inquiry into charges of fraudulent land operations in Texas was ordered today by the senate in adoption of a resolution offered by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama.

The inquiry to be conducted by the senate post office committee, will be conducted especially into the operations of the Alamo Land and Sugar Company, of which H. S. McCullin, Republican, national committee man from Texas, is president.

Consideration of the resolution was blocked by Senator Harrell, Republican, Oklahoma, until he had been given permission to insert in the record a number of editorials from Texas papers dealing with the proposal.

"Mr. McCullin is not a member of this body," said the Oklahoma senator, "and has no other way to be heard at this time. He requested me to insert these editorials."

Falls In Chief's Trap; Walks Away From Court

While waiting to be tried on two charges of violating the dry laws, Emory Castle, 35, of 1807 Dexter avenue, escaped the vigilance of the officers shortly after two o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he left the municipal court room and disappeared. When Castle's absence was noted there was quite a flurry and a squad of officers headed by Chief Arthur started in pursuit of the fugitive and the search was still in progress at press time.

Castle had pleaded not guilty, to possession of liquor and of furnishing and delivering liquor and had just finished a consultation with his attorney, H. S. McCullin, in the clerk's office a couple of minutes before he walked away unnoticed.

During the hearing of Mike Day, arrested for soliciting orders for liquor, it developed that the accused with Castle and Frank McDowell were placed under arrest and the six half pints were found in McDowell's pockets. McDowell testified that Castle asked him to deliver the six bottles, and collect $5.50.

McDowell testified that Castle asked him to deliver the six bottles, and collect $5.50.

Castle had pleaded not guilty, to possession of liquor and of furnishing and delivering liquor and had just finished a consultation with his attorney, H. S. McCullin, in the clerk's office a couple of minutes before he walked away unnoticed.

During the hearing of Mike Day, arrested for soliciting orders for liquor, it developed that the accused with Castle and Frank McDowell were placed under arrest and the six half pints were found in McDowell's pockets. McDowell testified that Castle asked him to deliver the six bottles, and collect $5.50.

OF FRAUDULENT LAND OPERATIONS IN TEXAS

WASHINGTON, February 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Inquiry into charges of fraudulent land operations in Texas was ordered today by the senate in adoption of a resolution offered by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama.

The inquiry to be conducted by the senate post office committee, will be conducted especially into the operations of the Alamo Land and Sugar Company, of which H. S. McCullin, Republican, national committee man from Texas, is president.

Consideration of the resolution was blocked by Senator Harrell, Republican, Oklahoma, until he had been given permission to insert in the record a number of editorials from Texas papers dealing with the proposal.

"Mr. McCullin is not a member of this body," said the Oklahoma senator, "and has no other way to be heard at this time. He requested me to insert these editorials."

Falls In Chief's Trap; Walks Away From Court

While waiting to be tried on two charges of violating the dry laws, Emory Castle, 35, of 1807 Dexter avenue, escaped the vigilance of the officers shortly after two o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he left the municipal court room and disappeared. When Castle's absence was noted there was quite a flurry and a squad of officers headed by Chief Arthur started in pursuit of the fugitive and the search was still in progress at press time.

Castle had pleaded not guilty, to possession of liquor and of furnishing and delivering liquor and had just finished a consultation with his attorney, H. S. McCullin, in the clerk's office a couple of minutes before he walked away unnoticed.

Watkins Must Serve Term

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 13.—Reese Watkins of Ironton must serve a sentence of one year in the penitentiary and pay a fine of $500, on a charge of manufacturing liquor, the state supreme court held today, refusing to review his case.

Watkins was convicted here in common pleas court some time ago on charges of manufacturing liquor. Prosecuting Attorney Elkins prosecuted the case and Watkins was defended by Judge Roberts. Later Watkins' case was appealed to the supreme court by Attorneys Irish and Riley. The case was called up last week and the prosecutor appeared before the court, but counsel for the defendant was not present and the court heard only the state's side of the case. The supreme court in its decision refusing to review the conviction, closed the case and Watkins, who is under bond, must serve out his sentence.

CHILLICOTHE, O., February 13.—An incinerator plant costing approximately $100,000, destroying approximately 4,500 tons of garbage and refuse of the city at an annual cost of about $5,000, and not a high priced $100,000 reduction plant, is the suggestion of Councilman Charles Alexander, as the factor that will solve Chillicothe's garbage problem. Mr. Alexander advocates strongly getting away from the objectionable feature of dumping garbage on the outskirts of the city and along stream banks. He holds that this method of garbage disposal is antiquated and out of tune with the progress that Chillicothe is making in other departments, such as general health, service and safety.

Auto Victim Will Be Buried Thursday

IRONTON, O., February 13.—Mrs. Robert O'Brien, who was formerly Miss Ethel Sinkford, says the story of the tragedy which robbed her of her husband, has been exaggerated, particularly as to the party drinking. She says her husband did not leave his home until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, that he was not drinking, and that he was not a joy rider, but that he had accompanied Williams, who was taking the two women to Portsmouth as passengers and not as companions, he having frequently used his car as a taxi cab. She says her husband had always been good and kind to her and that she had the utmost faith and confidence in him. They had been married seventeen months, O'Brien having come to Ironton from Germantown, Pa., about two and one-half years ago. The O'Briens had no children.

Funeral services for O'Brien will be held Thursday afternoon at Quinn Chapel A. M. E. church and the burial will be in Woodland cemetery. His sister, Mrs. Katie Warfield, of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived Wednesday to attend the funeral.

The body of Nellie Hall has been claimed by her mother, and it will be taken to Covington for burial.

Chilling of Pigs Responsible For Heavy Mortality, Report

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 13.—(Special)—About one third of pigs farrowed by Ohio farmers during the coming spring will die before weaning time, a loss that is easily avoidable according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

This startling prediction is not guess work, assert federal officials, but is made on carefully collected data of pig mortality now in possession of the federal department.

A survey of 363 farms, just completed, disclosed that of 26,412 pigs farrowed on these farms in the spring of 1923, a total of 9,300 were dead before weaning time. This loss of 34 per cent compares closely with a loss of 33 per cent on the same farms the preceding year and also with the percentage of other states, say federal investigators.

Were Ohio farmers so minded, this loss could be reduced to negligible proportions, assert federal officials.

Chilling of pigs, which is responsible for heavy mortality, could be prevented by proper housing at farrowing time, they declare. Those crushed by being laid on by the sow can be saved by the use of guard rails around the sides of the farrowing pens. Many farmers have adopted this precaution and have checked this loss, it is asserted.

The farrowing of weak or dead pigs is preventable in a large degree by the use of vigorous breeding stock and proper care and feed given the sow before the pigs are born.

Dead pigs are not a visitation of providence and should not be accepted as a matter of course, say federal officials. If the farmer will do his part in providing simple and inexpensive safeguards, the spring litters will be, in a large measure, saved, and thus add to the income of the pig raiser, and federal agents are conducting an energetic campaign to bring these facts home to the Ohio farmer.

Live Stock Associations Close A Successful Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—(Special)—The fifty odd livestock shipping associations which are members of the Ohio Livestock Shippers' Association, during the past year made sales amounting to more than $12,000,000, which the United States Department of Agriculture accepts as evidence that farmer cooperation has justified itself in the Buckeye state.

In a review of the work of these organizations, issued today by the Department, it is asserted that a total of 834,519 head of livestock was marketed, made up of 634,057 hogs, 125,132 sheep, 48,888 calves and 30,750 cattle.

Although the association handled 57,832 more animals in 1923 than in 1922, the amount of money received was nearly 7 per cent less, according to federal officials. The percentage changes for 1923 as compared with 1922 for the different kinds of animals are reported to be an increase of 11.2 per cent for hogs for 1923; an increase of 9.3 per cent for cattle, an increase of 5.1 percent for calves and a decrease of nearly 8 per cent for sheep.

Since the central association began compiling statistical information in 1921, it is asserted, over two million animals have been shipped by member associations, hogs leading with 1,700,164, followed by sheep, 341,157; calves, 110,503, and cattle, 62,208.

Of the 46 county associations shipping during 1923, the Putnam county association handled the largest number of animals, it having 7,946 head to its credit. Fayette county was second with 7,647 head, and Wyandot county third with 7,547 head.

The Putnam county association handled the largest number of hogs, 7,309; the Huron county association the largest number of sheep, 1,692; and the Fayette county association the largest number of cattle, 403.

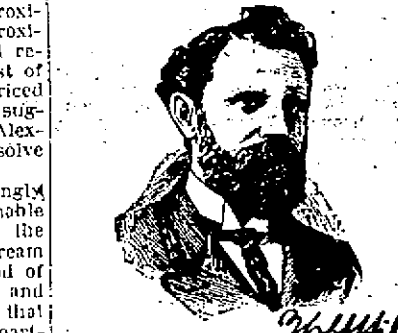

The association now represents 84,421 shippers, say federal officials.

HAVE you ever considered the magnitude of the property—the plant, the equipment, the apparatus, the facilities—that are necessary to furnish the million telephones of Ohio with Long Distance Telephone Service? It is impossible for any subscriber to see all the poles, the wires, the cables, the switchboards, the buildings that are essential in conveying messages from one point to another.

For YOUR long distance service, The Ohio Bell Telephone Company maintains more than 100,000 miles of copper wires; 243,790 poles, averaging thirty feet in length; 429,892 cross arms, averaging ten feet in length; and millions of pieces of central office equipment and apparatus.

This copper wire alone is enough to encircle the world four times.

The poles, if placed end to end, would reach 1380 miles

The cross arms would reach 814 miles

All of this vast plant and equipment, covering more than 40,000 square miles of territory, link together the hundreds of cities, towns and rural communities in Ohio for SERVICE—long distance service. Atheist Doctrine of Ohio Pastor Brought Heresy Charge

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The Rev. William Montgomery Brown of Galion, Ohio, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church and known to his opponents as "the bishop of atheism and heresy," faces trial on charges of extreme heresy, it became known today.

The charges, framed by bishops A. C. A. Hall of Vermont, Joseph M. Francis of Indianapolis, and William I. Gravatt of West Virginia, and sent to the House of Bishops, were based on statements made by Bishop Brown in his book "Communism and Christianity" and set forth that the churchman "holds and teaches doctrines contrary to those held by the Protestant Episcopal Church of America."

Theodore Schroeder, author of books of religion and friend of Rev. Mr. Brown, made public the charges. Bishop Brown was formerly bishop of Arkansas.

Some of the passages taken from Bishop Brown's book and upon which the heresy charges are based follow:

All Wrong, He Says

"God in the skies—Jesus, Jehovah, Allah and Buddha—are all right as subjective symbols of human potentialities and attributes and of natural laws, even as the Stars and Stripes on a pole, Uncle Sam in the capital, and Santa Claus in a sleigh are all right as such symbols; but such Gods are all wrong. I place the brother Jesus of the Christian religion and the Uncle Sam of American politics on the same footing with each other, and with others of their kind as subjective realities."

"The birth, death, resurrection, and ascension of all of the various gods, not excepting Jesus, are versions of the sun myth."

"There is no rational doubt about the fictitious character of the divine Jesus."

Doubts That Christ Lived

"Orthodox Christians say that Jesus founded their sectarian churches, though each sect insists that he had to do with only one church—theirs. I doubt that he lived."

"As an objective there is no such divinity—meaning a Triune God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit—he is a subjective—existing in the imagination of orthodox Christians."

The charges declare that since October, 1920, Bishop Brown has been holding and teaching such doctrines in Galion, in Chicago and in diverse other places in the United States. The quoted passages, it was charged, were printed and published and additional amendments to the original publication in 1923.

In 1922 charges were first preferred against Bishop Brown and it was expected that he would be tried for heresy with the House of Bishops sitting as a high court.

Original Charges

The charges were that Bishop Brown had circulated the "most pernicious propaganda against the church. A resolution adopted by the jubilee council of the Episcopal diocese of Arkansas demanded that Bishop Brown be deposed and excommunicated."

Bishop Brown, however, was never placed on trial and refused to resign, stating at the time:

"Church ceremonies and sacraments have become a habit with me, a bad habit I admit, but one that I can easily eliminate. Besides I don't see why I should get out of the church. I can accept all their formulations, if they will allow me to give them a naturalistic and humanistic interpretation."

"Of course, I no longer believe in a God who sits upon a literal throne in a firmament above the earth. Now I express my gratitude only to nature and to the workman, who, in conjunction produce all I consume and by whose grace I live move and have my being. That is why I am a communist."

ARE MOVIES THEATRICAL SHOWS? SUPREME COURT IS TO DECIDE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The state supreme court has decided to hear upon its merits a case involving the question of whether a motion picture exhibition is a theatrical performance. Several previous attempts to have the court go into the merits of such cases have failed, the highest tribunal merely sanctioning the lower courts by refusing to review their action. Lower courts have held motion picture exhibitions theatrical performances, which are prohibited on Sundays by state law.

The case to be heard is the appeal of Walter K. Richards of Findlay, who was convicted on a charge of exhibiting motion pictures on Sunday during the Sunday closing battle that was waged there several months ago.

Richards' appeal, however, raises a somewhat different question than previously has been presented in that it seeks to establish that all motion picture exhibits are not "theatrical performances." It was charged in the complaint against him that he had violated the Sunday law against "theatrical performances."

Richards, by operating his motion picture house, not designating that the pictures shown were in fact pictures of theatrical performances.

MacDonald Makes Favorable Impression On Parliament

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(By the A. P.)—In a calm atmosphere, though not devoid of excitement, and in circumstances which a few months ago would have been regarded as impossible, the new labor prime minister, J. Ramsay MacDonald today announced the policy of his government to a crowded and intensely interested house. His speech was characterized as able and well reasoned and it earned compliments from two former premiers, Stanley Baldwin and H. H. Asquith, leaders respectively of the conservative and liberal parties.

There were no scenes of turbulence or criticism, such as have characterized many former great occasions in British parliamentary annals. It might have been a new government formed by either of the great traditional parties, which in past times have alternately controlled Great Britain's administration.

Favorable Signs

The country has called for fair play for the labor government and from every thing visible in the house of commons today fair play will be accorded.

Taking into consideration the novelty of the position of the ministers, who only had three weeks to prepare to present themselves before parliament.

under exceptionally difficult circumstances, the house was willing to adjourn immediately after the prime minister concluded his speech, and would have done so but for the pertinacity of a few members.

The premier indicated that he had no intention of driving against parliamentary traditions but warned the house that his government equally had no intention of being driven from office by smart party tactics. He intended to claim the privileges due the head of a minority government.

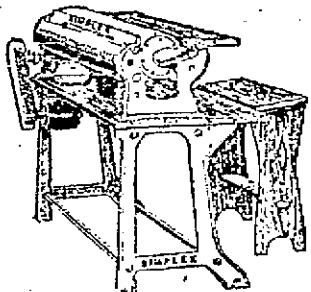

The prime minister's speech dealt very largely with social problems, less with foreign affairs but he was extremely optimistic concerning the better atmosphere already created in dealing with France and hopeful that America would be induced by the new spirit invoked by his government to lend her invaluable aid eventually to the promotion of the work of peace, associated with the League of Nations.

On the whole, the feeling in the lobby of the house was that the government had made a successful first appearance.

Why suffer from Rheumatism?

There is a certain unexplainable feeling that goes with a cold and heavy old age—it is a feeling of happiness, of care unknown, of reborn youth.

But rheumatism—that deadly malady which has caused so many to surrender to the woes of pain and suffering—caused so many to forego the pleasures of life—caused so many to be dependent. Why suffer from it?

To be helped about—crutches, canes and willing hands always needed to assist you here and help you there. That situation will vanish the same as skin disorders—the same as sallow complexion—the same as that run-down condition when S. S. S. is used. S. S. S. builds red blood cells by the scores, carries S. S. S. The large power is strengthened.

FORTUNE'S FOOL

By RAPHAEL SABATINI 1923. RELEASED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Colonel Holmes, soldier and adventurer, returns to England, the land of his birth, when war is declared with Holland. He comes to lodge with Martha Quinn, hostess of the Paul's Head, in Paul's Yard, London.

The Colonel asks his old friend, His Grace of Albemarle, to secure for him a place in the army and Albemarle warns him that the name of Colonel Holmes is a bad one to have in the warrant for the execution of the late king. Therefore it is dangerous for the Colonel to secure a commission.

Holmes returns to Mrs. Quinn's and visions of a youthful love affair return to him. Nan, the object of his affections, had disappeared when, after five years' absence, Holmes returns to her. At her aunt's home he receives some courtesies.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

By great fortune—by a heavenly Providence, in her eyes—her niece was absent at the time. And so in the cause of holiness she fled to London—although of this the poor fellow had no suspicion.

In that case, young sir, you seek something I cannot give you.

"You mean, you do not know."

"That she has left you."

"She braced herself to the righteous falsehood."

"That is what I mean."

"When did she leave you? Tell me that, at least."

"Two years ago. After she had been with me a year."

"And whether did she go? You must know that!"

"I do not. All that I know is that she went. Belike she is in London. But, at least, I know is where she would wish to be, being all worldliness and ungodliness."

He stared at her, a physical sickness expressing his little Nan in London, alone and friendless, without means. What might not have happened to her in two years?

Inquiries in the village might have altered the whole course of his life. But, as if the unutterable gods of fate, Nan's devotion removed all doubts of the frustration of her ends. Randal, run out of Charnmouth without having spoken to another soul.

For six months after that he sought Nan in all places likely and unlikely. And all that while in Charnmouth Nancy patiently and trustfully awaited his coming, which should deliver her from the dreadful thrall of Aunt Tuffin's godliness. For she did not share Potheridge's belief that she was dead.

And meanwhile despair was settling upon young Randal. To have loved and striven with but one illusion and one aim, and to find in the hour of triumph that the aim has been rendered unattainable, is to know one's self for Fortune's fool.

A loyal soul such as his the blow was crushing. It made life purposeless, robbed him of ambition and of his whole nature. His steadfastness was transmuted into recklessness and restlessness. He required distraction from his brooding; the power of arms at home, in time of peace, could offer him none of this. He quitted the service of the Parliament, and went abroad—to Holland, that happy hunting-ground of all homeless adventurers. He entered Dutch service, and for a season prospered in it. But there was a difference, deplorable and grim. He was no longer concerned to build himself a position in the State. Such a thing was impossible in a foreign land, where he was a mercenary, a soldier of fortune, a man who made of arms a trade soulless and unimpaired. With the muzzle of the mercenary he put on a mercenary's habits. He easily earned gold; he spent riotously, prodigally, as was ever the mercenary's way. He gambled and drank and squandered on all worthless wares.

He grew notorious; a man of reckless courage, holding his life cheap, an able leader of men, but a dissolute, hard-drinking, quarrelsome Englishman whom it was not safe to trust too far.

The reaction set in at last; but not until five years of this life had corroded his soul. It came to him one day when he realized that he was over thirty, that he had dissipated his youth, and that the path he trod must lead him ultimately to a contemptible old age. Some of the good that shimmered in the depths of his soul welled up to cry a halt. He would go back. Physically and morally he would relapse his steps. He would seize this life that was slipping from him, and make it his original intention. For that he would return to England.

He wrote to Monk, who then was the powerfullest man in the realm. But—fortune's fool again—he wrote just too late. The restoration was accomplished. It was a few weeks old, no more. For one who had been a prominent Parliament man in the old days, and the son of a Parliament man still more prominent, there was no place by then in English service. Had he but made the application some months sooner, whilst the restoration was still in the balance, and had he then taken sides with Monk in bringing about the overthrow of that very man who had redeemed the past by Stuart eyes, setting up a credit to cancel the old debt.

"Then came the war, and England's unspoken summons to every son of hers who trailed a sword abroad. Dutch service could no longer hold him. This was his opportunity. At last he would shake off the fith of a mercenary's life, and go boldly home to find worthy employment for his sword."

CHAPTER V

The Mercenary.

Colonel Holmes took the air in Paul's Yard, drawn forth partly by the voice of a preacher on the steps of Paul's, who was attracting a crowd about him, partly by his own restlessness. He was moving along the skirts of the crowd that had collected before the preacher, with no intention of pausing, when suddenly a phrase arrested him.

"Repent, I say, while it is time! For behold the wrath of the Lord is upon you. The scourge of pestilence is poised to smite you down."

Holmes looked over the heads of the assembled citizens, and beheld a black crowd of a man, cadaverous of face, with sunken eyes that glowed unceasingly from the depths of their sockets.

"Repent!" the voice cried.

"Awake! Behold your peril, and by prayer and repentance set yourselves to avert it while yet it may be time. Within the Parish of St. Giles this week lie thirty dead of this dread pestilence, ten in St. Clement's, and as many in St. Andrew's, Holborn. These are but warnings. Slowly but surely the plague is creeping upon the city. As Sodom of old was destroyed, so shall this modern Sodom perish, unless you rouse yourselves, and cast out the evil that is amongst you."

Holmes moved on. He had heard odd allusions to this pestilence whilst he was in the Netherlands, and he was told to be making victims in the outskirts and which it was alleged by some fools were a warfare waged by the Dutch—at least, that it was the Dutch who had let it loose in England.

As he moved on, a man of handsome presence and soldierly bearing, with the dress and air of a gentleman, came abreast of him, he suddenly stepped forward, detaching from the crowd, and caught the Colonel by the arm. Holmes checked, and turned to find himself gravely regarded by this stranger.

"Either you are Randal Holmes, or else the devil in his shape."

Then Holmes knew him—a ghost out of his past, as he was, himself, a ghost out of the past of this other; an old friend, a brother-in-arms of the days of Worcester and Dunbar.

"Tucker," he cried, "Ned Tucker!"

And impulsively, his face alight, he held out his hand.

The other gripped it firmly.

"I must have known you anywhere, Randal, despite the change that time has wrought."

"It has wrought changes in yourself as well. But you would seem to have prospered!" The Colonel's face was rejuvenated by a look of almost boyish pleasure.

"Oh, I am well enough," said Tucker. "And you?"

"As you see."

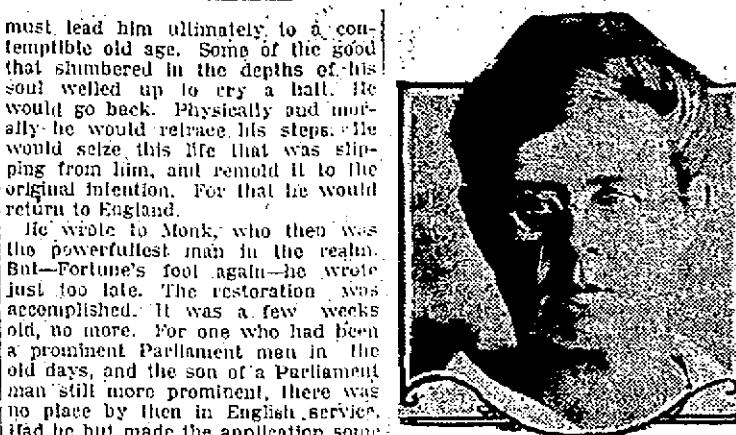

"The other's grave dark eyes considered him. There fell a silence, an awkward pause between these two, each of whom desired to ask a hundred questions. At last:

"I heard of you in Holland," said Tucker.

"I am but newly home."

"Whatever can have brought you?"

MRS. IDA GREENWOOD, COLUMBUS, OHIO

Mrs. Ida Greenwood, the wife of a well-known farmer, living on E. Main st., Station E. Rural Route No. 5, is wonderfully pleased over her experience with Ka-di-ko. She says: "I had a bad stomach and was in a highly nervous condition for over three years during which time I treated with four different doctors, but failed to get any permanent relief; I could scarcely eat a bite of food and felt terribly weak and worn out. A few months ago I heard about Ka-di-ko and have been taking it regularly ever since. Today I am a different woman—stout and strong, ready to eat when meal time comes around and able to do my housework and a bit of farm work on the outside. Ka-di-ko has done me so much good that I would not be without it under any circumstances. I am in good health and more contented with myself than I have been for over three years. I can truly recommend Ka-di-ko to any stomach sufferer."

employment in which I may serve my country."

"And you've found it?" The smile on the dark face suggested a scornful doubt which almost made an answer unnecessary.

"Not yet."

"It would have moved my wonder if you had, it was a rashness to have returned at all." He lowered his voice, lest he should be overheard. "The climate of England isn't healthy at all to old soldiers of the Parliament."

"Yet you are here, Ned."

"Again that slow, half-sour smile lighted the grave, handsome face. He shrugged. He leaned toward Holmes, and dropped his voice still further. "My father was not a regicide," he said quietly. "Therefore, I am comparatively obscure."

Holmes looked at him, the eager pleasure which the meeting had brought him withering in his face. Would not over green the memory of this thing and of the elly tie with which they had garnished it? Must it ever prove an insuperable obstacle to him in Stuart, England?

"Nay, nay, never look so glum, man," Tucker laughed, and he took the Colonel by the arm. "Let us go somewhere where we can talk. We should have a deal to tell each other."

Holmes swung him round.

"Come to the Paul's Head," he bade him. "I am lodged there."

But the other hung back, hesitating a moment. "My own lodging is near at hand in Cheapside," he said, and they turned about again.

In silence they moved off together. At the corner of Paul's Yard, Tucker paused, and turned to look across at the doorway of Paul's and the fanatical preacher who stood there staring. His voice floated across to them.

"Oh, the great and dreadful God!" (Continued in Our Next Issue.)

Berlin is suffering from a "plague" of beggars. They are jamming the railroad depots and blocking the shop doors.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Blanche E. Stockham to Mr. David L. McHenry at noon on Saturday, December 24, at Washington O. H. Ohio. The impressive single ring ceremony was read by Rev. H. H. Alexander, pastor of the M. E. church.

The attractive bride wore a handsome gown of brown crepe with corresponding accessories. The only attendant was Mr. Elmer Klever, cousin of the groom.

The happy couple then motored to Springfield, spending the holidays with the groom's parents. While there they were entertained at a dinner of lovely appointments at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Richards. They were also honored at a beautiful luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Coffman. Mr. and Mrs. McHenry then returned to this city and succeeded in keeping their marriage a secret until a few days ago.

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The results proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womanhood, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

Mr. Walter Yost, secretary and treasurer of the Pine Lumber Company, Birmingham, Alabama, has returned to his home in that city after a few days' visit with home folks.

The Hucker's Social Club will give one of their enjoyable dances on Friday evening of this week in Hucksman's Dancing Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Light entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smith (Helen Light), a bride and groom of recent date. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. E. M. Smith, Helen Smith, Mrs. Mary Frewing, Miss Gertrude Light, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. William Light.

Give the children a piece of WRIGLEY'S after every meal. It satisfies the craving for sweets and the chewing of the gum will help digestion and act as a pleasant, antiseptic cleanser of mouth and throat. You would "give almost anything" if the children would keep their teeth clean. Why not reward them with and have the very reward itself do the work! Try it for a month and observe results. Three cents per day per child will pay the bill and make them happy!

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womanhood, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

Waverly Man Lost Life in Apartment House Fire In Cleveland; Body Is Found In Ruins

Had Been Missing Since Christmas

CLEVELAND, Feb. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Fred Wilcox, of Waverly, Ohio, former Portsmouth man, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Wellington apartment house here December 30, it developed today when workers clearing away the debris came upon his charred body. At first it could not be determined whether the body was that of a man or a woman.

Through the diligence of D. H. Fryer, who had been investigating the disappearance of Wilcox, the body was identified as his. He traced Wilcox to the suite of Carl Hamilton in Wellington. Hamilton, who moved to Lorain after the fire, was brought to Cleveland following the discovery of the body, and identified it as that of Wilcox, who he said spent the night with him.

When the fire broke out Hamilton said he assisted in rescuing a Mrs. Florence Hess, owner of the apartment, and sent firemen back to find Wilcox. Later he was told by firemen that they had taken the man from the room.

Wilcox is the second man to lose his life in the fire. Theodore Maxwell was killed when he fell thirty feet from a ladder while being carried out by firemen.

Wilcox, who worked in Portsmouth a few years ago, was a native of Pike county, living on the Jasper pike, about three miles out of Waverly.

He had not been heard of since about Christmas time, John Wilcox of Waverly, son of the dead man, said Thursday in an interview with the Daily Times. The son received word of his father's death yesterday morning, and arrangements are being made to bring the remains to Waverly for burial.

Details of Wilcox's death were not communicated to the son by Cleveland officials last night.

Wilcox left Waverly about four months ago, going to Cleveland to accept work as a bridge carpenter for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co., and has been employed there since that time.

He had worked in Portsmouth on previous occasions, and was well known here, as well as in Pike county, where he had spent most of his life.

Mr. Wilcox was a widower, his wife having passed away in July of 1913.

Surviving are three sons, John and Frank of Waverly and Eugene. Eugene lives on the old home place on the Jasper pike.

Wilcox was 48 years of age.

entire, whose sarcophagus lies in his tomb, a scant hundred yards from that of Tutankhamen, and hitherto regarded as unique in Egypt merely represents the final form of the mummy case of Egypt's kings.

The sight of the sheets of gold gleaming on the mummy case of Tutankhamen tells its own tale of the reward that awaited the enterprise of the ancient tomb robbers.

When the correspondent entered the tomb he found a sheet of glass laid across the open sarcophagus between the cracked granite lid which hung from its tackle some three feet above.

The first sight of the dead king's effigy was overwhelming. It might have been a huge golden idol. An incredibly bizarre effect was lent by the solid gold head-dress, the long curved gold beard, the thickness of a ship's cable, and the gigantic snail and crook grasped in the great hands.

The greatest discovery in the history of Egyptology, even as many claim, in archaeology, was made in the plainly adorned sepulchral chamber of Tutankhamen in the Valley of the Kings.

In the presence of a gathering representing the elite of Egyptology, the lid of Tutankhamen's great pink sarcophagus was raised and a stupendously magnificent mummy case, covered with plates of solid gold, was brought to light.

The moment was the most dramatic in the history of the dramatic discovery of Tutankhamen's tomb. By general consent of those present, the mummy case, which undoubtedly encloses the king's mortal remains, immeasurably surpasses in splendor and beauty even the previous magnificent treasures the excavators in this tomb have brought to light.

Or Rare Splendor
The mummy case is perfectly intact. It is described as one of the most wonderful things of its kind that ever has been found. The Pharaoh is represented in high relief, covered with sheets of solid gold, more than twice life size, his serene and beautiful face exquisitely incised, with glittering eyes of argonite and a long unpeeled beard of solid gold.

The final and sceptre which the king grasps in his crossed hands are of solid wood more than three feet long. From the waist down the broad wings of protective goddesses meet across the knees shield the Pharaoh from danger.

When the lid was raised the mummy case was found to be covered with three thicknesses of linen, browned with age. This linen when rolled up disclosed to the eyes of the excavators, as one of those present told a correspondent of The Associated Press, "a gleaming, golden man."

The mummy case stands in a coffin on what seems to be a wooden sledge on which doubtless priests dragged it to the Valley of the Kings.

Scene Depicted
To picture the scene of this tremendous find one must visualize a narrow, low roofed vault, the walls of which are decorated with rather garish religious scenes which King Ay had painted in honor of himself and his predecessors; in the foreground a group of guests, bareheaded, in shift sleeves and unpleasantly wrinkled, jostling one another in the heat of the tomb; in the background, beneath scaffolding, pulleys and ropes the plain huge mass of the royal Sarcophagus, brilliantly illuminated under the blinding rays of an 8,000 candle power electric lamp.

When the Egyptologists had assembled in the tomb, Howard Carter said "we are going to raise the lid of the Sarcophagus and we hope to find the king within."

Lid Is Raised
Slowly and swayingly, but without noise, or mishap so carefully had the work been prepared for, the lid came up.

At last a halt was called and the lid remained suspended a good three feet above the coffin. Mr. Carter was the first to glance within. He saw only a mass of dirty brown cloth, strangely blowing up. It was a tense moment. The twenty odd men were for the first time in history written in the annals of their science gazing upon the marble tomb of a king of ancient Egypt. What the age-stained cloth concealed was the question uppermost in the minds of all present.

Mr. Carter and Mr. Callender bent over the coffin and, starting from the foot, began to roll up the veil. Slowly and carefully they went about their work. At first a blackened mass appeared. But then there came a glimpse of gold. There lay the effigy of the king, a blaze of gold, moulded in the relief, like a crusader on the tomb, in sheets of solid gold up to the mummy case shaped to the form of the mummy, which undoubtedly was the king's.

The king was wearing the "beni" or folded head dress seen on the sphinx, and in the center of which in Lapis lazuli, was the sacred uraeus or cobra, side by side with a hawk's head. Framed in the golden folds of the wig-like head dress Tutankhamen's face appeared. It was that wistful, beautiful boyish face which is seen so often in the hunting scenes adorning his bows, his boxes and his chairs, with gleaming eye of argonite, strangely and very lifelike, a soldier, stoutly carved nose an exquisitely carved sensitive mouth and a chin adorned with the traditional surging beard.

The artistic merit of the work was designated by those who saw it as of the highest description, capturing everything hitherto discovered in this tomb which has been so rich or artistic masterpieces of the Eighteenth dynasty.

on the defensive. As long as Edwin Denby remains in the cabinet, Mr. Coolidge must be the center of bombardment. The scene shifts from the Capitol to the White House.

Mr. Coolidge is keenly aware that his attitude in suspending judgment will be completed a thorough investigation may have an effect on his political fortunes for in his statement commenting on the Senate resolution the President says: "I do not propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare."

The right of the Senate to compel a President to call for the resignation of a cabinet officer is of no consequence in the controversy. None of those who voted for the resolution seriously believed they had that right. They hoped however to advise the President of the Senate's opinion he could act for himself. Mr. Coolidge points out that the Senate can impeach a cabinet officer if it wishes.

Nowhere in the Senate debate was there the slightest intimation that Secretary Denby was guilty of complicity in the financial transactions which are said to have influenced the action of former Secretary Albert Fall. The Senate believes Mr. Denby innocent but incompetent. That's what the majority vote meant. That Mr. Denby should have permitted his name to be signed to the transfer of the oil reserves to the Department of the Interior is the premise on which the competency to hold office is based.

The President has taken Secretary Denby into his bosom. Months, possibly a whole year, will elapse before the special counsel appointed to investigate the case can possibly form their conclusions. Meanwhile, the political opposition to Mr. Coolidge will point out that he retains in his Cabinet men who in the opinion of a majority of the United States Senate failed to do their duty by the government.

No longer is it a legal issue or a personal affair against Mr. Denby for he is personally well liked and popular. It has become instead a political issue and in this the Democrats with the help of the insurgent Republicans have out-manuevered Mr. Coolidge. The President is on the defensive now and must find some way to prove that what Secretary Denby did was justified or else call for the resignation of that official.

Rumor has it that when the Teapot Dome excitement has quieted down and the investigation is going along quietly, Mr. Denby will hand in his resignation and will at the same time receive a general whitewashing so far as integrity and competence is concerned but that Mr. Coolidge will not enter the 1924 campaign after his prospective nomination in June with the handicap of a Cabinet officer in whom the Senate of the United States has expressed a lack of confidence.

Such a vote in any other parliamentary body would mean the imminent resignation of the Cabinet officer but in the United States the Cabinet places are not constitutional offices. Indeed there is no express provision in the Federal constitution for a Presidential cabinet. Congress has created by law the executive departments and Congress could at any time in passing an appropriation bill refuse to permit the funds to be used if a certain officer is in charge of a particular department. Congress could also pass the pending plan for the reorganization of the government departments which calls for a consolidation of the war and navy departments under the head of the Department of National Defense. The President when his Cabinet is not popular is well established but in practice there is no precedent for the compulsory removal of a cabinet officer by order of either the House or Senate or both.

The political opponents of the President are just as well satisfied that he gives them something to talk about from now till election—Denby and the Cabinet of which Albert Fall was a member is issue enough for the party on the outside that wants to get on the inside.

Much of his address, however, was devoted to a discussion of tax revision with a reiteration of his support of the Mellon bill "without material alteration and compromise."

The chief executive presented an appeal to the country to support him in pressing for passage of the Mellon bill, saying that unless the people "make their wishes known to the congress without regard to party, this bill will not pass."

Particular emphasis was placed on the proposal to reduce surtaxes to a maximum of 25 per cent, despite the word carried to Mr. Coolidge by Republican house leaders last week that such a reduction would not be granted by the house.

The Democratic Garner bill was branded by Mr. Coolidge as "impossible in practice" and "political in theory." (One statement made by the president without elaboration was that any settlement of the European situation would "call for a European funding and financing which would be of doubtful success without American participation.")

Mr. Coolidge also reiterated his opposition to the bonus, declaring it would result in inflation and higher prices and adding that "a few months of good times are worth more to the service men than anything they could receive in the way of a bonus."

The scale of arms by the American government to the Obregon government in Mexico, which has been attacked by Senator Johnson, of California. Mr. Coolidge's only announced opponent for the Republican presidential nomination, was defended. The action taken by the administration, he said, was "to exercise a legal right, while at the same time throwing our influence in favor of orderly procedure and evidencing our friendship toward the friendly government of Mexico."

Arriving at 4:23 p. m. yesterday, in the presidential car attached to a regular Washington-New York train, the Coolidges and their party drove through cheering throngs, amid a driving snow storm, directly to the New Women's National Republican Club. There the president and Mrs. Coolidge shook hands with New York's most prominent women Republicans and drank tea with them.

Thence they were hurried to the Waldorf-Astoria, the impending darkness being lighted along the route by flares and photographers' flashlights. They returned to the presidential suite on the third floor of the hotel until 7:30, when they entered the historic grand ball room and were greeted with prolonged cheering by the 2,000 assembled guests.

At the president's table were some thirty distinguished Republicans. Mrs. Coolidge heard her husband speak from a box in the balcony, surrounded by flowers.

VISITING OLD FRIEND

Peter A. Gardner, a well known citizen of this city, is spending a few days in St. Louis with his friend, James Vigns, also a former well known citizen of Portsmouth. Mr. Vigns entertained Mr. Gardner at his beautiful club house at Ten Brook near St. Louis where Mr. Ariste, former publisher of the Watervays Journal of St. Louis has a settlement of 20 club houses. Mr. Gardner will return home Saturday.

Liquor Treaties To Be Delayed Pending Action On Pact With England

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(By The A. P.)—Active negotiations with various foreign governments looking to the adoption of liquor treaties similar to the one aimed at rum-smuggling recently signed with Great Britain will be deferred pending senate action on ratification of the British-American pact. Construction plans are expected to enter prominently into the senate discussion of the pact.

The American minister at The Hague recently began discussions with the Netherlands government for such a treaty, but it was said today at the state department that the conversations were merely preliminary and that, although several governments had expressed a willingness to enter upon liquor treaty negotiations, no definite action would be taken along this line before the senate had passed upon the treaty with Great Britain.

Get Property For New Filling Stations

Two important real estate deals which will mean two more oil stations for the city have been completed by the Portsmouth Oil Company. One of the properties is that which was owned by Chris Besenbeck at the southwest corner of Ninth and Lincoln streets. The property has been merely preliminary and that, although several governments had expressed a willingness to enter upon liquor treaty negotiations, no definite action would be taken along this line before the senate had passed upon the treaty with Great Britain.

Dumpers In Pool Are Less Than Two Percent of Total

Loyal members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association not only are delivering their tobacco to the pool, but are reporting promptly every effort of pool members, whether tenant or landlord, to run off his tobacco to the auction markets, according to a statement made by Claude B. Robinson, head of the evidence gathering department of the field service of the association at Lexington. Mr. Robinson added that while a considerable number of suits had been filed, the total would not aggregate two per cent of the association membership, and he credited this condition entirely to the loyalty of its membership and their realization that the "dumper" inside the association is the worst menace the pool has to confront.

The New Spring Skirts

Find Many Charming Ways Of Being Smart

And smart they must be, to be a fitting complement to the exquisite blouses for Spring. So many new models are arriving these days, in such a profusion that you must come in often to keep in touch with all that's new.

Pleated styles as well as the wrap-around models are here in many new materials and colors. Wool Crepe, with a novel self stripe is used to fashion some. Others use Plaids, Plannel, Novelty Silks and Voile-Vel to charming advantage in both plain and pleated styles.

Many handsome new color combinations are to be seen, as well as plain shades of Tan, Grey and Black. The price range is complete $4.95 up to $18.50.

A Charming Innovation For Spring Colored Blouses of Fine Voile

As cheery, as fresh, as colorful as Spring itself are these new Blouses that have just arrived at Andersons' Second Floor. Their exquisite colors and smart trimmings proclaim them as distinctly new and the "last word" in style.

All are entirely made by hand in beautiful shades of Orchid, Yellow, French Blue, Peach and Flesh. Many are handsomely embroidered in white and others in self colors.

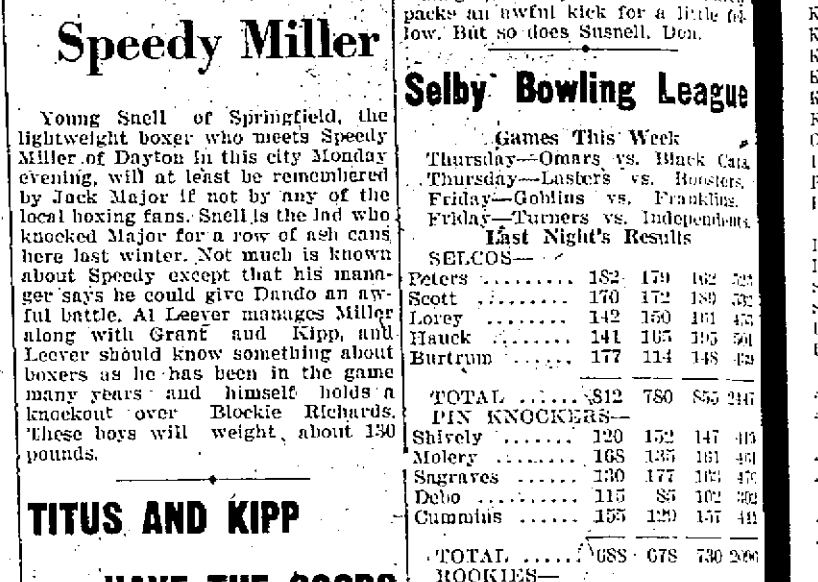

White Linen Collars give a crisp, fresh finish at the neck in some while three models have dainty hemstitched voile ruffles.

They are not at all expensive at $4.98 and $6.50.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ABOLISHES BONUS

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Abolishment of the system of granting bonuses to players for batting average or fielding excellence and approval of a plan to select annually the league's most valuable player were decided upon today by the owners of the National League. These were the principal steps taken at the annual mid-winter season which also formally approved the 1924 schedule of 154 games, opening April 15, and closing

MISS FAY MARIE JONES, CAPTAIN OF ASHLAND KITTENS IS MARRIED

CLEVELAND, Feb. 13.—Bowlers of the Ohio State Bowling Association were confronted with a new wonder in the singles events and changes in all other division standings when they took the allies in the annual tournament today. The Cincinnati section of the association also was on the program.

Bowling a 601, J. Novatny of Cleveland, replaced Larry Gazzoli of Toledo in the lead in the individual event, leaving the Hickicks of Toledo leaders in the five team events, coming only out of town last night.

Frankie Susnell, Portsmouth classy

Clark at Bad News Taylor in this city. But Bad News has evidently been hearing some "bad news" about Frankie's old sleep producers. At any rate his manager slide-slipped the boat over after he had agreed to make 15 shows, which is under Taylor's freight with the latter boxed Eddie Grant. Taylor, nevertheless, is a pleasing performer and would be welcome back to Portsmouth anytime even though he did lose the decision to Grant who has a habit of always being on the winning end. Grant and Whitey Clark should make a great show here next Monday evening at the Winter Garden. Clark has won over Taylor, Phil Olfowd, Battling Quink and other good banlams.

Attributes Longevity To The Fact That He Did Not Smoke, Drink or Chew Gum

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—(Special)—The oldest member of the 83rd Congress, Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood of Toledo, a Democrat, attributes his longevity and his unusually keen mental faculties to the fact that he has never smoked, drunk or chewed gum and has always taken a moderate amount of exercise.

Replying to a questionnaire sent him by the editor of a health magazine, Sherwood today revealed the "secrets" by which he has kept himself in excellent health despite his 88 years. His sole exercise since the strenuous days of the Civil War, he says, has been walking. He declares that he never learned to play golf, has never danced and is not given to "undue frivolity."

Asked if he did not believe that the pressure of public affairs was shortening the lives of many of our public men, beyond the breaking point, Gen. Sherwood replied:

"No, if the presidents would confine themselves to the legitimate duties of their office, would cut out a large portion of their political speeches and would confine their efforts largely to their executive duties and leave the petty political details to their subordinates."

A number of the questions and Sherwood's replies brought out the "rules for right living" through which the Toledo octogenarian has achieved distinction not only as the oldest member of the present Congress, but as the oldest man ever elected to Congress.

"Do you not agree that a man who takes little exercise must pay great attention to the matter of diet and cultivate a habit of abstemiousness in eating and drinking?"

"I never took up dancing. Too much dancing, poor music and ill-ventilated halls are bad for anyone. I never practiced or indulged in undue frivolity."

"How about horse back riding, brisk walking, mountain climbing, tramping over a rough country?"

"Horse back riding is fine. I was one of the best riders in the Union Army. Never experienced mountain climbing. All my climbing consisted of trying to make both ends meet and pay my bills."

"Have you any ideas that might be helpful about how to deal with high blood pressure?"

"At 88 my blood pressure is all right. I have no ideas on the subject of blood pressure. That question is giving the medical profession all kinds of trouble. They are equipped to work it out."

"What do you think of golf as a means of promoting physical, mental and spiritual well being in a man?"

"Know nothing about golf. Never played it. Never will. A man can overdo anything, even golf."

"What do you think of dancing for men over 50?"

"I never took up dancing. Too much dancing, poor music and ill-ventilated halls are bad for anyone. I never practiced or indulged in undue frivolity."

Akron May Have Neither Street Cars Nor Buses

AKRON, O., Feb. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Akron is faced with the probability of being without both street car and motor bus transportation unless city council at an adjourned meeting tomorrow afternoon can find some means of complying with a court order issued today.

While council was listening to arguments of representatives of various local organizations, demanding that street car service be resumed at a six cent fare pending settlement of the transportation problem, the Akron jitney bus drivers' association obtained a temporary injunction and mandatory order in common pleas court, requiring city officials to immediately enforce a city ordinance regulating jitneys and jitneys.

LUCKY FRIDAY
STRANGE, how so many of us consider Friday an unlucky day, for Friday has been unaccountably lucky in the history of America. It was on a Friday that Christopher Columbus sailed westward into the unknown, on his voyage of discovery. He discovered America on Friday and returned safely to Europe on Friday.
St. Augustine, our oldest city, was founded on Friday.
The Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower sailed into Provincetown harbor on Friday. It was Friday when they made their final landing on Plymouth Rock.
George Washington, father of our country, was born Friday.
Other famous events that happened on Friday: Bunker Hill was seized and fortified. The surrender of Saratoga took place, powerful in inducing France to throw her strength to the Colonists fighting for American independence. Benedict Arnold's treason was discovered.
Surrender at Yorktown, decisive in the war for independence, took place on Friday.
And it was on Friday that the Declaration of Independence was moved in Congress by John Adams.
And still there are many who consider it unsafe to start on a journey or embark on a new venture on Friday. The superstition that Friday is unlucky probably is of religious origin, in connection with the Crucifixion, according to historians. It has persisted through so many centuries that it still survives despite its being disproved thousands of times.
Superstition outlives granite.

Only thing some people save for a rainy day is rheumatism.
Minford citizens let out a roar of protest against the condition of their roads. They have reasons too. For the only safe way to travel to Minford these days is in an airplane. But we suppose the Harrison township citizens will accept the explanations handed them by the county commissioners in lieu of good roads. And then the commissioners will go on spending the taxes on roads in their immediate neighborhood.

That noble printers' bowling team that went to Indianapolis from The Times-Sun office strenuously denies the story that only three teams bowled in the contest in which they finished third.

Another little thing that we just perfectly enjoy is to see a big, huge, large, two-listed sort of a man wending his way down our metropolitan streets during a snow storm with a dinky umbrella over him.

Taxi Bill! Oh, Taxi Bill!! You of Lakeside!!! We very much fear that official eyes that have been blind and official ears that could not hear will have to see a great light and hear a great noise one of these days. And, if they do, Taxi Bill, you are liable to "be as if you ain't."

Poor old Portsmouth that has gone permanently into the Norfolk & Western's Preferred Next Year Class. Now it is stated that Ironton is to be given a new freight station at once, that it is to be built at once, and that $100,000 has been appropriated as a starter.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY
BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Sixth Avenue is to doff the shiny serge. It is to take its place among the sparkling boulevards of the city. The cumbersome elevated railroad is to be removed and no longer cast its shadow over the famous old street.
The wide sidewalks are to be shortened to make way for better street traffic. Many of the old brick fronts are to make way for stone and marble. Only a block separates Fifth from Sixth, yet one is symbolic of wealth and power and the other poverty and hopelessness. Dives struts on one and Lazarus slouches along the other.
Sixth Avenue is the cul de sac for the jobless. Rows of employment agents testify to the unrelenting salaries and shifting ambitions. Here and there are touches of grandeur, but mostly it is run down at heel. There is a composite aroma of Greek kitchens, garlic, chop sueys, quick lunches and cellar mustiness.
It has long been the haven for sidewalk merchants. The toy curb market at the southern end has for years been the delight of ragged little children who seek over from the East Side to gaze in wide-eyed wonder at the mechanical glimmers they could not buy.
In the days of the saloon Sixth Avenue was dotted with dark and saucily barrel houses where sam-wit men and other small job jet-sam drifted for nickel beers and plentiful free lunch. It was the last stand before the Bowery and social oblivion.
At night one sees a quiet and pale procession of men along Sixth Avenue. Their coat collars are turned up and their hats pulled down. They belong to the gray ghost army of drug addicts and they find succor from craving among the peddlers of dope packets.
Geographically Sixth Avenue should be one of the principal streets of the city. It is near to the heart of the shopping world. It cuts through the theatrical district, yet the only theatre there is the Hippodrome.
He is a callow youth in the throes of bitter disappointment. For an hour he had waited in the lobby of a hotel for the girl of his dreams. Finally he went to a telephone booth and found it occupied by a lady who was also facing a broken engagement. She was speaking her mind. He could hear her. She too, had been kept waiting for more than an hour.
When she stepped outside, he lifted his hat and said: "I, too, have been 'stood up.' Let us be disappointed together." She was much older than he and the breath of romance appeared. They went down into the grill together for dinner. It was a pleasant dinner, with no exchange of mutual confidences. At length she announced she must go. He found she lived in a New Jersey town, so he offered to taxi to the station to put her on a train. Outside he found a big limousine with liveried chauffeur awaiting her.

She invited him to drive home with her and they drew up before a fine country mansion. He said his father's car promised to meet him the following day. Two weeks later they were married. She is an enormously wealthy widow and he is a $50 a week salesman.
As a rule I dislike "claws." It has never thrilled me to stand on the knob of a bill and watch damn bills and stupid trees try to look significant. A lake to me is generally just a place to row a boat. My interest is chiefly in humankind and its progress. Yet there is one view in New York that stirs a suggestion of a beautiful mind. It is at Inspiration Point on Riverside Drive at dusk. Here one may watch the purpling of the majestic Palisades along the Hudson. It makes the skeptical feel like crying out, "Ain't nature grand?"

Indian Love Song
Neither spirit nor bird;
That was my flute you heard
Last night by the river,
When you came with your wicker jar
Where the river drags the willows,
That was my flute you heard,
Wacoba, Wacoba,
Calling, come to the willows!

Neither the wind nor a bird
Ranched the lupine blooms,
That was my blood you heard
Answer your parent's hem
Whispering through the grasses;
That was my blood you heard
By the wild rose under the willows.

That was no beast that stirred,
That was my heart you heard,
Pacing to and fro
In the ambush of my desire,
The music my flute let fall,
Wacoba, Wacoba,
That was my heart you heard
Leaping under the willows.

—From the Shoshone, translated by Mary Austin.

To Keep Hubby Home
"I wish I could think of something to keep my husband at home in the evenings," said Mrs. Johnson.
"Give him a motorcar," suggested Mrs. Smithson.

"No, indeed. My husband bought one last week and the doctor says he won't be out for six weeks."

Its Superiority
"Why do you call Petunia a more promising town than Periwinkle?" asked a guest.
"I'm suffering—Socrates!" replied the landlord of the tavern. "Petunia has nearly ten times as much room to grow in as Periwinkle has!"

Grotto Parade Tomorrow; Initiation of Class Follows

With everything in proper alignment, with a large list of candidates, with the hall in absolute readiness, there is every indication that the Valentine Cerebral to be conducted by Yezdigord Grotto tomorrow afternoon and night will meet the expectations of participants. The festivities will start with a big street parade which will leave the masonic Temple promptly at 1:30. The principal streets of the city will be traversed, the parade being headed by the crack Grotto band, followed by the Prophets and candidates of whom there will be a large number. The parade will break ranks at Yezdigord hall, Damarin building, where the festivities will be held. According to a conservative estimate there will be at least fifty candidates, making the class one of the largest since the Grotto was initiated. Quite an array, indeed, and some of the candidates are quite prominent in official life.
Prophets are anxiously awaiting the raising of the asbestos curtain at Yezdigord hall. It will reveal one of the finest settings that ever greeted the eyes of the prophets. The stage is not only wide, but of sufficient depth to meet every requirement. The scenery, which has all been hung, is brand new and every scene can be depicted precisely.
Following the ritualistic work, there will be an adjournment for lunch which will be served in buffet style at the hall. Then will come the big surprise of the evening, the officers are awaiting the nature of the affair—but prophets are assured that it will be well worth seeing and hearing. Then will come the revels—what a night of fun and frolic. It is stated that while the program will be quite varied this ceremonial, that the revels will be practically new stunts. Anyhow, the room workers, under the scrutiny of Monarch William Zoffmann, have been working early and late in getting things ready and announced last evening that this has been written, and when the fun starts it will be fast and furious, and will keep up at a terrific clip throughout the entire evening and night.
Owing to the fact that the affair has been mapped out with such precision, it will be an easy matter to care for twice as many candidates whose petitions are already in the hands of Secretary Ives. To that end prophets are asked to keep busy on prospective candidates up until noon tomorrow. However, they should not be so busy as to forget their annual dues for without exhibiting the little salmon colored card showing dues paid for 1924, it will be impossible for them to participate.

TAG DAY FOR DEBATING TEAM

Tag Day was held today at the High School and tags were placed on students and other people who are willing to support the High School debating teams. The tags bore the slogan "Headball" for the debaters and a goodly sum was collected for them.
No admission has ever been charged here at the High School debating and when other people who are willing to support the teams to other towns they pay all expenses. This soon amounts up and without a fund set aside for debating the teams would soon cease to exist. For this reason the Boosters' Club of the High School conceived the idea of having a tag day to raise money enough to send the debaters to Jackson Friday.
Prof. H. H. Eccles, who was in Jackson recently, stated that the students at Jackson are getting behind their debaters and they are confident of winning from Jackson. Last year the Jackson teams were made up of all girls and no boys. This season the boys have taken an interest in debates and the teams have but one girl on it. The P. H. S. teams have been working hard under the coaching of Miss Jess Platto, English teacher.

Frustrate Jail Delivery; Fines Are Passed Around

Discovery of attempts by prisoners to escape from the county jail, led Sheriff Harry M. Dunham to take steps to curb his "guests" yesterday when the three alleged ringleaders to the plot, James McGrath, Dan Carrington and Shorley Hardin were convicted of malicious destruction of property as a result of sawing bars of the prison, while a fourth, William Brown, was given a stiff sentence when found to be guilty of attempting to take communications out of the hostile to friends of other prisoners.
After hearing details from the sheriff and other witnesses of the plot of the prisoners to escape, Squire Morgan plastered McGrath with a number of $500 and thirty days while Carrington and Hardin drew 30 days and $100 fine each. According to Sheriff Dunham, McGrath was the chief offender in two recent attempts by the prisoners to effect a jail delivery which were frustrated by timely discovery. Search of the prison and the inmates resulted in the finding of a number of hack saw blades, which had been carried into the bastille by prisoners in the soles of their shoes.
Brown was due to be released from jail yesterday after serving a sentence for fighting and the hearing disclosed that he made the fatal mistake of attempting to secretly carry messages outside to friends of other prisoners without the consent of the jailer. Now he must remain a "boarder" for 30 days long, and pay $100 fine which was the penalty passed out to him by the magistrate.
